

Rochebrune

Easy

1. Walk past the Rochebrune cable car station and follow the track up to the Caboche (the large skilift station that you can see on the left). From town, you can walk up the steep road behind the St Georges hotel). Then follow the track to La Tour. Continue to the Lac Du Javen passing the Baboche Restaurant. You can walk round the lake and then walk past the Javen Restaurant and down the track to La Maz. You can get a bus from there or follow the sign and walk down to the centre of Megeve.

2. Check that the Alpette chair is running. If so take the Rochebrune cable car and walk down to the Alpette chair. From the top of Alpette you can take the track down to the dirt road to the Javen Restaurant and then back to Megeve.

Medium

1. Take the Rochebrune cable car and walk up to the top of Alpette, which is steeper than you expect. From there you can either take the track to the left down to the Javen, or you can walk along the ridge to the top of Cote 2000. From there follow the long track down, past the Radaz Restaurant to the car park where you can get a bus back to Megeve.

2. Take the bus to Cote 2000 and walk up the long track past the Radaz Restaurant to the ridge. You can then walk back along the ridge and come down by the cable car, or walk down to the Javen track.

Hard

Take the cable car and walk along the ridge to the top of the Lanchette and Rochefort drag lifts. Or get someone to drive you to Cote 2000 and up the gravel road to the Radaz and walk up from there. From the top of the ridge walk past the restaurant and a little way (30-40m) along the track going to the right of the Cote 2000 ridge in front of you to find a steep path on your left that climbs up the ridge above the cliffs at Cote. It is difficult to find the start as few people walk that way. Walk up the ridge past the avalanche cannon to the top. Follow the track along the ridge to the top of Mont Joly. It is very exposed in places and there are fixed cables to help you ascend the Aiguille Croche, but there are stunning views of Mont Blanc. From there you can either walk all the way down to Planellet and get someone to pick you up, or walk back to the Mont D'Arbois lift and come down by the lift. This is a serious 7-8 hour walk/scramble. Go properly equipped..

Mont D'Arbois

Easy

Take the cable car and walk along the ridge to the Auberge Du Mont Joly. Retrace your steps.

Medium

1. Take the cable car up and walk along the ridge towards Mont Joly. At the top of Mont Joux do not head for Mont Joly, but bear right and walk across to the top of the Etudiant lift and down the path to Planellet.

2. Repeat this walk, but start from Planellet and come down by the cable car.

3. Drive round to St Nicholas and up the gravel road past the ski lift to get onto the ridge. From there you can walk up the Epaule ridge. You can stop for a snack at Les Marmottes on the ridge or cut across to the Auberge de Mont Joly (not always open). From the latter walk back down to St.Nicholas or retrace your steps down the Epaule.

Hard

Take the cable car and follow the signs for Mont Joly. It is a bit of a scramble at the top but the views are worth it.

Jaillet

Easy

1. Go up the lift and then follow the sign to the Col Du Jaillet. Retrace your steps or follow the sign to Christomet. Before you get there take a track on your left which should bring you back to the lift.
2. Drive up to Finger's Restaurant . From there you can either walk up Christomet and back or walk up to the Col Du Jaillet.

Medium

Go up the cable car and walk to Col Du Jaillet. From there head up the Petit Baulet. You get superb views of Mont Blanc. If you feel energetic go on to the Grand Baulet. Retrace your steps.

Hard

Get someone to drive you to Cordon, to the bottom of the ski lifts. Walk up the track to the top of the lifts. From there you can either go left, which is the shorter way, or right. If you go right you arrive at the top of a hill. From there is a steep slide down, though there is a cable to hang on to. It is short. From there walk back along the ridge to the Coll Du Jaillet. You skirt round the Grand Baulet and from there head back to the lift at Jaillet. If you feel energetic you can climb Grand Baulet.

Praz Sur Arly

Easy

Drive up from _____ past the Restaurant. The track is very rough but keep going and you arrive at a car park at the top. There are picnic tables there with lovely views. Walk along the track to La Giettaz where there are more picnic tables. From there you can retrace your steps or you can head down a short way, take the track to your right past the restaurant and follow the signs to the Restaurant. You will have to walk up the rough dirt track back to the car.
